Junmo's Reflection: Another helping?

Lent for this year is already half over. How is your Lenten journey going?

For me it is hard to keep remembering to give something to God in this special season, unless I give it my full attention. For many Sundays now in my children's talks I have focused on sharing with poor people. Some of the church members might think, "Again..... We know it, Junmo!"

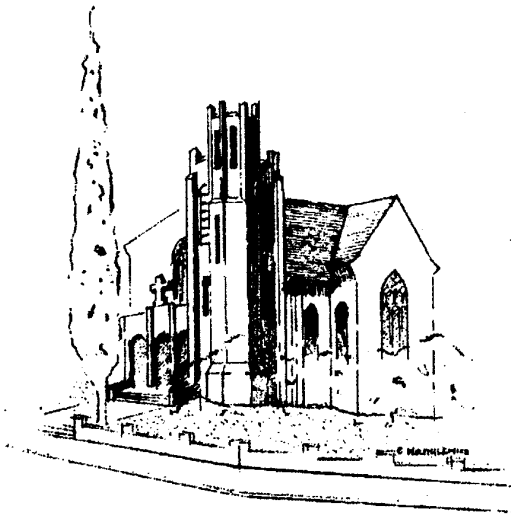

But whenever I recall my past and present life I can't help giving thanks to God. My family, making me happy; my physical health; friends and colleagues who share the Christian faith; church members going on a faithful journey; and so on. Especially looking at our church and the work and giving that it does. Most recently there was the cake stall. In the rain, on state election day, we did another wonderful work for God, for our church, and for people in need. I am very happy with and proud of the Mosman Uniting Church congregation, because we help others around us; no matter whether it is inside or outside the church; whether it is at home or abroad.

My point is that we are very lucky. And we need to share it with others. We don't ask for others' help but we can and do help others in need. It is not easy for me to find something better than helping and sharing. This is what Jesus did in the world, right up to the time of his death. The more we help, the more we will be filled and happy. Let us keep looking around us to find a person who needs our help. Cheers for Easter!
